Changes in the Office of Neighborhood Coordination

You may have heard a new voice on the other end of the phone when you’ve called ONC. We finally hired an Administrative Assistant to replace Dalaina Carmona, who left our division in June. Her name is Julia King and she comes to ONC by way of Housing. She has been a City employee for almost four years. She is a welcomed asset to our staff. And then, just when we thought we were back to “normal,” our land use guru, Don Newton, has moved to the Family and Community Services Department. He will be the Director of, the soon to be open, Taylor Ranch Community Center. We bid Don a fond farewell and wish him the best of luck in his new position.

The City of Albuquerque does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin or ancestry, disability, age, gender, Vietnam Era or disabled veteran status, sexual orientation or medical condition in employment or in the provision of services. If you have a disability and will need special assistance to benefit from any of the meetings, hearings, or workshops, etc. appearing in this newsletter, contact the office sponsoring the event two weeks prior to the date of the meeting you plan to attend. Whenever possible, TTY phone numbers will be listed. TTY users may call any phone number listed in this publication via Relay New Mexico at 1-800-659-8331.

WHAT IS THE ABQ ALLIANCE FOR ACTIVE LIVING?

The Albuquerque Alliance for Active Living provides leadership in promoting environments that offer choices for Active Living, a way of life that integrates physical activity into daily routines. Key programs include pedestrian and bicycle activities, as well as policy changes regarding land use and transportation. By changing our behavior and the built environment, individuals can improve their health and decrease the risks of obesity, diabetes, heart disease, arthritis and some cancers.

The alliance's pedestrian and bicycle activities are focused within three "target areas" that are bisected by Central Avenue: Atrisco, Downtown, and Nob Hill/Highland. These three areas have, to varying degrees, experienced disinvestment and blight in the last 30 years, yet offer great opportunities for revitalization and active living. Activities to date have included walking tours with WALK Albuquerque, a bicycle safety and donation program with BIKE Albuquerque and Vecinos del Bosque, and Safe Routes to Schools.

Alliance coordinator Joanne McEntire notes, "The alliance is planning projects for its second year, and we hope to find one or two more neighborhoods in the target areas who want to become an Alliance partner, especially if they are experiencing changes and want to become more pedestrian-friendly. People who are engaged in daily activities outside their home lead healthier lives, both physically and socially."

The neighborhoods in the Atrisco target area include Vecinos del Bosque, Pat Hurley, and Five Points. Around downtown, they are South Broadway, Barelas, Wells Park, DNA, Huning Highland, Broadway/Central, Santa Barbara/Martineztown, Martineztown, and Reynolds Addition. In Nob Hill/Highland, the neighborhoods are Nob Hill, SE Heights, and Highland.

Working together on the policy level, various city departments and APS are alliance partners. They explore policies and regulations that can be changed to support physical activity. In addition, a new graduate course titled "Active Living by Design" is being offered for the first time at UNM by the Institute for Public Health and the School of Architecture and Planning.

For information on how your neighborhood can participate in the alliance, contact Joanne McEntire, Alliance Coordinator, at 1000 Friends of New Mexico, 848-8232, ext. 104, and by e-mail at <joanne@1000friends-nm.org>. The ABQ Alliance for Active Living is part of a national program of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

Nob Hill Business Association Chili Cook Off

The Nob Hill Business Association is sponsoring the First Annual Nob Hill Chili Cook Off and Active Living Celebration on Saturday, September 18 from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. in Nob Hill. The event, cosponsored by First State Bank, 104.1 World Class Rock, Albuquerque Alliance for Active Living and Zanios Foods will benefit the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. The cook off, to be held in the Nob Hill Shopping Center parking lot on Central Avenue at Carlisle Blvd, will include 15 to 20 chefs from locally owned restaurants vying for prizes in red, green, vegetarian and nuevo categories. Restaurants already committed include Zinc, O'Neills Pub, Buster's 66 and La Montanita Coop. Prizes will be awarded by celebrity judges, plus a special People's Choice Award given by the local community tasters who contribute $2.00 for an opportunity to taste the local spicy treats. All monies for the tasting will be donated to the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society. Local salsa vendors will be set up throughout Nob Hill at the local businesses to offer free tastes of their array of condiments.

As well, Bike Albuquerque will be hosting bike races through Nob Hill, bike activities for the kids and bike workshops. WALK Albuquerque will be sponsoring a walking tour of Nob Hill. To support the event, the local community is encouraged to bike, walk or ride the bus to Nob Hill for a fun day of tasting and active living. For further information contact Kathy at 254-8409 or <kdomenici@comcast.net>.

NEIGHBORHOOD SCOOP

ACROSS THE FENCE

Los Duranes Neighborhood Association

Submitted by Leo Padilla

*Co-Written by William C. Herring, President,
Los Duranes Neighborhood Association*

Established in 1988, the Los Duranes Neighborhood Association, represents a community of 775 households located in the near North Valley of Albuquerque. It is one of the oldest neighborhoods in Albuquerque. Founded in the early 18th century as a farming community along the Rio Grande - just north of Old Town, by the Duran family. The Duranes acequia, established in 1706, is still in use. Los Duranes chapel, built in 1890, is listed on the Register of Historic Places, but few old houses remain as the river moved its boundaries at will, leaving parts of Los Duranes a swamp. In the early 1930's, the Middle Rio Grande Conservancy District established the present ditch and levy system which made it possible to drain the swampy areas along the river.

Today, Los Duranes, bounded by the river and Rio Grande Boulevard to the west, I-40 to the south and The Meadows and Thomas Village to the north. It is a peaceful, semi-rural oasis in the middle of the city. Chile is still grown in ancient fields - horses, goats, donkeys and poultry add to the mix, though today infill is rapidly claiming many of these pastures.

The neighborhood has always been ethnically diverse, though heavily Hispanic. The names of its narrow lanes reflect families still in residence there - some of them for hundreds of years - Gabaldon, Los Anayas, Los Luceros. The neighborhood association recently sponsored a city-funded oral history project which resulted in a Colores TV program on PBS titled Recuerdos de Los Duranes.

A third of the neighborhood lies in Bernalillo County, an island of un-annexed land in the middle of the city - providing unique challenges in dealing with two different governments and many problems. Just recently the Albuquerque Police Department joined the City Fire Department in taking the county section of Los Duranes under its wing, ending years of confusion about who would respond to emergencies in different sections of the community.

The Neighborhood Association, with annual dues of $5 per household, puts out a newsletter every other month - delivered by hand to each of the 775 Los Duranes households. Well-attended neighborhood association meetings are held the third Monday of odd months at the Duranes Community Center - binding the community together and providing Los Duranes with a long-needed voice in the larger community.

Goats On The Grass -
Lawn Maintenance
The Old Fashioned Way

On Monday, August 2, I took a very nice drive through the Los Duranes area. I was there specifically to take pictures of the area - it was a pleasure cruising around this area. I was very surprised by the diversity - there are very large homes on what appeared to be one acre lots, very large homes on small lots, small homes on acre lots, small homes on very small lots and everything in between. There were old houses, new houses and everything in between.

Lots of horses, sheep, goats, chickens and other livestock also reside in Los Duranes.

The area is zoned RA/Residential and Agricultural Zone, Semi-Urban Area, which allows for these kinds of critters - somewhat of a surprise that this area is not in the far North Valley or the far South Valley - this was a big, pleasant surprise to me, at every turn it seemed there was more livestock.

During this tour, I ran across a house located in what I consider the heart of Los Duranes. By its appearance, it is a very old house. It is located on the corners of three streets - Rice Road, Amado Road and Rice Street. The house is shaped like a triangle, (I think) to fit the streets that it lies within. This adobe house reminded me of some of the houses built in Barelás, next to the Rio Grande river, where I grew up. My fore fathers built their houses on acquired land - to match the environment, e.g., the roads, the acequias, the river. The best land was saved for farming and family gardens. I noticed that some of the older houses were oddly shaped, most likely to accommodate growing families. As more and more children were born the parents would add on more and more rooms to their houses. After a while, some houses take on the shape of a train, where one room leads to another room and another, and so on. I think this is kind of neat because families tended to stay together and not separate the way we do now.

I could go on forever about this area - it's such a nice community. Perhaps I will return to the Los Duranes neighborhood for a follow-up article.

RIORANCHO UNIVERSITY
An Educational Opportunity in City Government

In February of 2002 the City of Rio Rancho embarked on an innovative new civic education program: Rio Rancho University – Government 101. The purpose of the program is to “both educate citizens who are interested in learning more about city government and the complex issues” to be faced. In addition, the program is to “encourage the development of renewed civic pride and responsibility through open dialogue and an exchange of ideas and information.”

No program like this exists in any other city in New Mexico and is based on the model developed in Glendale, Arizona. The Human Resources staff person, Ellen Aragon – Civic Outreach Coordinator - is the mother of this great training innovation. After her study of the Glendale program she came back to create a similar program based on the needs of the Rio Rancho community. She conducted the first pilot program beginning in February 2002 and will be starting her sixth, eight week, City Government 101 class this fall.

In addition, Ellen has developed graduate level, three-week, topic-specific courses. These are tailored to the needs of the customers. The current graduate program will be concluded by a presentation from Congressman Tom Udall. As of now, this education program has gone far beyond the concepts developed in Arizona and is a source of pride for the community. Rio Rancho University graduates, and the promotional items they receive during the program, are held in high esteem in the community. When you see a navy blue tee shirt with the RRU logo on the front, you know it was earned.

The format of the classes is designed to lay a foundation to establish a “working knowledge of the city government’s role and give citizens a bird’s eye view of the internal and external activities of the departments/divisions and their functions”. As a result, citizens gain a familiarity of the problems when confronted with the various issues that challenge the city.

A special note concerns those who desire involvement on boards, commissions or committees, or are considering the role of an elected official. This free educational program will benefit anyone aspiring to hold office. During the last election, every candidate for elected office was a graduate of Rio Rancho University.

The program covers:

- First night opening speeches by the Mayor, Ellen Aragon, Program Manager, City Councilors and the first presentation by the City Administrator. This session is held in the Council Chambers in Rio Rancho City Hall.
- For the next seven weeks they have presentations by: Library and Informational Services, Department of Senior Services (held in the Meadowlark Senior Center), Rio Rancho Convention and Visitors Bureau, Information Technologies, Department of Finance, Department of Utilities, Department of Public Works, Municipal Court (held in the Municipal Courtroom), Department of Public Safety (held in DPS headquarters), Department of the City Attorney, Department of the City Clerk, Department of Human Resources, City Development Department, Dept. of Parks and Recreation, PEG51 (Public Education Government Channel 51).

On September 9, the sixth class will begin and be completed on November 4, 2004. They expect to have 30 participants for the program. Another Graduate/Advanced Group is also being formulated. If readers are interested in knowing more about this exciting community development program, call Ellen Aragon at 896-8748, in Rio Rancho. The next available class will be in February and is already almost at capacity.

Neighborhood
Workshop
Corner

Workshops are held in the Plaza Del Sol Building Hearing Room #160, Basement Level, 600 Second St. NW, unless indicated otherwise.

Board Training Workshop
Tuesday, September 14, 2004
6:30 pm to 8:30 pm
Planning Hearing Room

What makes a neighborhood association successful? This is by far the biggest question we get from associations. The answer will be discussed at this workshop, however many things can make an association successful. Some of the following topics will be presented and discussed: What are you doing for fun? Do you have a newsletter? Have you done a survey lately? How about membership drives? Do you have agendas for every meeting? Plus other equally important topics.

Neighborhood Association
Patrol Training
Saturday, October 16, 2004
9 am to 1 pm – APD Training Academy

Community policing is a philosophy, which recognizes the mutual dependence and shared responsibility of the police and community in making Albuquerque safer and more livable. Neighborhood Association Patrols are not in and of themselves community policing, but one tools that may be selected by neighborhoods to maintain or improve upon safety in the Neighborhood.

You may register for workshops by calling ONC at 924-3914, by fax at 924-3913 or on-line at www.cabq.gov/planning/pages/neighborhood/newsletter/neighworkshop.html.

To accomodate all workshop participants, you must be pre-registered to attend these workshops. Registration includes your name, address, telephone number and association. We appreciate your consideration and cooperation.

A Message From The Mayor

Martin J. Chavez, Mayor

Sport and Recreation Summit The Overview

There are a lot of sports and recreational interests and opportunities in the Albuquerque area, and we attract a good deal of national and even global interest because of our great weather.

Unfortunately, we are currently under-equipped to meet the full range of demands, and our early efforts to better coordinate, cooperate and otherwise jointly utilize our limited sporting and recreational infrastructure have been largely unsuccessful.

We also have a large community of enthusiasts for a wide variety of recreational and sports activities, often to the point where there are overlapping or conflicting interests – even in an area as vast as ours.

Given my desire to make Albuquerque a Marquee city in terms of quality of life amenities, and my priority for development of economic opportunities, I have begun to gather input from the community including a recent Sports and Recreation Summit on August 19th.

My goals going in were:

- 1) To coordinate efforts, cooperate toward shared visions and identify areas of need, both in terms of facility and organization as well as financial strategies;
- 2) To create an up-to-date, ongoing resource guide for and a listing of Sports and Recreation opportunities and amenities for both residents and visitors; and
- 3) To better promote the region as a choice Sports and Recreation destination.

It is particularly important to emphasize the shared vision, for if differences succeed in dividing us, then not only do we miss opportunities for collaboration, but we also effectively grind to a halt overall. But by partnering and supporting each other's goals, I believe we will all benefit greatly.

Where we all live, there are facilities available to us and there are also no doubt gaps that should be addressed. Of course, the resource limitations need to be considered, but I have also seen that there are needs that can be addressed if only the right idea gets to the right people at the right time.

Now may be that time, and our process of gathering input from neighborhoods and sports or recreational interests will be ongoing during the next few months, even as we attempt to digest all we heard and learned from the Sports and Recreation Summit.

If you have an opinion or perspective you would like to add to this important discussion, please do not hesitate to contact me.

The contact person in my office is AJ Carian <ajc@cabq.gov>. The phone number is 768-3000, and again, your input to this process is important.

Albuquerque is a beautiful place to live, and our series of initiatives in areas such as weeds and litter as well as abandoned cars and graffiti, only enhance that aesthetic. Add to all this our increasingly impressive set of amenities as well as our great weather, and we are fast becoming the all-around community that the rest of the country can only hope to emulate.

Thank you for giving me this chance to lead our community during this exciting time, and again I look forward to hearing from you on this — or any topic important to you.

Albuquerque Celebrates 300 Hundred Years

It's Official -
Mayor Martin J. Chavez
Signs Albuquerque's
300th Anniversary
Strategic Plan

Albuquerque will be 300 years old in April 2006. It's our birthday as a community that has grown in diversity from a few thousand settlers and pueblo communities to nearly 750 thousand people in Greater Albuquerque.

Mayor Martin J. Chavez signed the Albuquerque Tricentennial Strategic Planning document that validates the Executive Committee and the necessary task forces to get the ball rolling on our celebration. The Executive Committee and task forces, comprised of Albuquerqueans from all walks of life, have been at work for over a year planning activities, publicity and educational and merchandising projects for the event. Mayor Chavez is grateful for all the hard work these volunteers have put into planning the event and looks forward to a great celebration for a great southwestern city.

The Tricentennial Committee consists of the Tricentennial Executive Committee and six task forces - Strategic Planning, Special Events/Media, Merchandising and Licensing, Protocol Hospitality, Education and History.

Council staff may be reached at 768-3100. The agenda for an upcoming council meeting may be checked by calling 768-3100 after 1 p.m. on the Friday immediately prior to the council meeting. The City Council's fax number is 768-3227. Agendas, Action Items and Summaries are available on the Council's webpage at <www.cabq.gov/council/counsched.html>.

SMOKING BAN IN EFFECT

On March 27, 2004 City Council passed the Clean Indoor Air Ordinance. The Ordinance went into effect on July 3, 2004, after having given businesses an opportunity to comply with the new regulations. The Ordinance prohibits smoking in restaurants, unenclosed restaurant bars, coffee shops and cafeterias within city limits. Santa Fe and Roswell are two New Mexico cities that have already enacted their own smoke free bans.

Restaurants that have patios or outdoor seating areas are permitted to allow smoking, so long as customers do not have to walk through areas where people smoke. In addition, a smoking area is allowed if smoke cannot drift in through windows, doors or enter the building through the ventilation system. Restaurants are required to post no-smoking signs and inform patrons and employees with a written smoking policy.

Private clubs such as posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the private country clubs are exempt from the ban. Bars that make more than 50 percent of their income from the sale of alcohol are also exempt, even if they serve food.

The Albuquerque Fire Marshal's Office is the enforcement agency for the smoking ban. Citizens and customers who witness patrons smoking in non-smoking areas can file a complaint with the Fire Marshal. To complain about nuisance smokers or non-complying restaurants, call the Fire Marshal's office at 764-6300. Penalty for violation can result in a misdemeanor and fine of $100.00 for the first offense, $200.00 for the second and $500.00 fine for the third offense.

ANIMAL ORDINANCE REVISIONS

Work is underway to completely revamp the City's existing Animal Ordinance. Portions of the revision, in rough draft form, are available on the City's Website. Click Proposed Changes to the Animal Ordinance on the homepage. Comments and suggestions are welcome. It is expected that the Ordinance revisions will be introduced to City Council later this year. For additional information regarding this bill or any other legislation, please visit the City Council website at <www.cabq.gov/council>.
